JUNIOR HI SCHOOL SYSTEM ENDORSED BY TRUSTEES OF GRADE SCHOOLS IN DISTRICT

Wallace M. Morgan of Tujunga Offers Resolution Which Passes With Unanimous Vote of All Representatives

BOND ELECTION IS AUTHORIZED AT MEETING

Each Part of the Jurisdiction to Have Its Own Higher Institution; Campaign of Education to Be Started at Once

A junior high school system was recommended by the trustees of the Union high school district at the conference held Tuesday night in Glendale.

Heavy storms failed to keep up-country school trustees of the Union high school district from attendance on a conference Tuesday evening with high school trustees and members of the Glendale board of education, which resulted in a resolution offered by Wallace M. Morgan of Tujunga and adopted by unanimous vote, as follows:

"Resolved: It is the sense of this meeting that we recommend that at such time as the present high school buildings are vacated, the board of trustees of Glendale Union high school be authorized to call a mass meeting for the purpose of instructing them to call a bond election to vote bonds to erect junior high school buildings in the following places: Tujunga, La Crescenta, Eagle Rock and the northwestern section of Glendale; and we further recommend that when the proper time arrives the board of high school trustees arrange to inaugurate a junior high school system covering the present union high school district."

"This motion," Mr. Morgan explained, "calls for a bond election before a junior high school system is inaugurated, and it will be up to us to present the matter to the people and conduct a campaign of education."

The motion was seconded by Mrs. Marian Reynolds of Tujunga, and, as stated, carried without a dissenting vote.

Previous to the passage of the motion a clear and exhaustive presentation of the arguments in favor of junior high schools together with statistics relative to the anual cost per pupil, as compared with elementary and senior high schools, had been made by Supt. Richardson D. White, supplemented by Principal George U. Moyse of the high school, Supt. E. E. Harwood of Eagle Rock, and Principal Fred W. Axe of Tujunga, all of which clarified the subject and paved the way for the motion. President Watson presided, Mr. Oliver acted as secretary and the meeting adjourned at 9:30.

The delegates assembled at 6 o'clock in response to the invitation of Principal Moyse and enjoyed a fine dinner in the cafeteria of the school, covers being laid for C. W. Young, W. H. Dorrance and E. E. Harwood of the elementary schools of Eagle Rock; Walter M. Morgan, Fred W. Axe and Mrs. Reynolds of Tujunga; Dr. Ben H. Smith, H. A. Baldridge and Mrs. Alma Austin of La Crescenta; David Hibben, Mrs. A. A. Barton, Dr. P. O. Lucas and E. H. Learned of the Glendale board of education; George U. Moyse, principal of Glendale high and host of the evening; Richardson D. White, superintendent of city schools; Capt. Thomas D. Watson; Dr. H. V. Brown, Mrs. Blanche Gardiner, and Daniel Campbell, members of the high school board of trustees; A. L. Ferguson, vice principal and Irving H. Oliver, business manager of Glendale high.

The dinner which was prepared by Mrs. Eifler of the high school cafeteria under the direction of Miss Ellen Hanson, head of the cooking department of the school, was served by a group of six pupils, viz.: Shirley Fawkes, Lilian Kirksey, Alice Kramer, Jo Ruth Clark, Doorthy Lindgren, and Vera Witcher. At the close of the dinner President Watson called upon C. W. Young of Eagle Rock and former high school trustee, as a penalty for having two pieces of pie, to thank Miss Hanson and her students, which he did in his usual charming manner, reminding himself and his auditors of the days when the banquets served at the close of the year to himself and fellow board members were their only compensation for a year of work, and yet they felt repaid, so good were the dinners.

COLLECTIONS ON BONUS LINE ARE BEGUN

H. Nelson Takes Charge of Problem of Getting Pledges in

The work of collecting the money necessary for the electrifying of the Union Pacific's line on Glendale avenue started in earnest this morning. The list of subscribers to the fund was turned over this morning by P. J. Hayselden, chairman of the combined railroad committee of the Glendale Advancement association, to Herman Nelson, at the Glendale avenue branch of the Pacific-Southwest Trust and Savings company, and the work of sending out the announcements which state that the subscriptions are due and payable, was started this morning.

This opening gun in the collection of the bonus money is the beginning of a campaign that the workers believe will end with the entire amount being collected. The matter of how soon the work on the railroad will be started remains with the people of Glendale. It is up to them. The Glendale-Montrose Railway company, which will have charge of the construction work on this line, is ready and anxious to begin operations. The managers of this company state that just as soon as the money is in the bank, they will begin the work of converting the line into an electric road.

On the strength of the word of the people interested in the line to the effect that the money has been raised, the Glendale-Montrose Railway company has already contracted for a large quantity of the material for this line. Company officials have stated to members of the Glendale Advancement association that, providing the money has been raised, the company will be ready to start work on the line about January 1st, and that within four months of that date the line will be in operation.

For this reason, an urgent call is being made to those who have subscribed to this road to "come through" at the earliest possible date. It is simply a question of the subscribers keeping faith with the railroad company, which is fully willing and capable of living up to its part of the agreement.

The work of collecting this money has started and, according to those in charge of this work, there will be no let-up until all of the money has been paid in.

"Let's go over the top with a whoop," said Mr. Nelson when seen this morning. "We are in this thing to win. Let us show the Glendale-Montrose people that we are a lot of good sports and that when we start a thing we actually carry it through."

Bootlegger Dive Owners Prosecuted

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 13.—Prohibition Director S. F. Rutter will arrive here tomorrow to assist Special Counsel W. J. Gloria in preparation of abtement of nuisances cases against owners of buildings where bootleggers have been convicted of conducting operations. Gloria has been conducting hearings of 35 physicians and druggists facing revocation of licenses because of alleged misuse of liquor privileges.

BURGLAR FLIES AS TERRIER JUMPS

A small fox terrier saved its owners, Mr. and Mrs. Burgess F. Lhamon, 1848 Gardena avenue, the loss of valuable jewelry and silverware when it completely routed a burglar who had gained entrance to the home while they were away last night.

Neighbors telephoned the police at 7:30 o'clock when they heard the outcry of the man. An investigation showed that entrance had been gained by a front window. A piece of the man's clothing was found in the dining room. According to the police blotter, "the man gained entrance by a front window and left the same way in a hurry."

BUS FARE TO BE ALLOWED HI STUDENTS

High School Trustees Decide to Continue Present System

VACATION DATE SET

Lack of Funds Prevents Paving of Alley on West Side of Campus

At the meeting of high school trustees that followed the conference of district trustees Tuesday evening, the board took action on the question of methods of transporting students from the up-country districts, also on the paving of the alley which forms the west boundary of the present campus. It likewise voted to close the school for the two weeks' Christmas vacation Friday night.

Some dissatisfaction relative to transportation having been expressed, patrons in the upper valley were asked to take a straw vote. The returns covered three propositions, viz., "Shall the trustees compel all students from Sunland and Tujunga to ride on the regular public bus?" "Shall the trustees allow parents to transport their children to the high school as they are doing at the present time?"

The returns showed that four families voted in favor of trustees compelling all students to ride in the public bus; nineteen families voted in favor of allowing students to come as they do now, some by bus, some by private conveyance; five families voted for something different from either, viz., that the school establish a bus line and run it.

The trustees voted to continue the present method of transportation, permitting students to come in the manner most convenient and to make an allowance of bus fares for every day they are in attendance.

The board had been asked to participate in the paving of the alley on the west side of the present campus. The matter was discussed and trustees voted not to do so at the present time for lack of sufficient funds. The board has already been heavily taxed for street improvement on Louise, and there is a prospect it will have to participate in the cost of repaving Colorado street, for which proceedings have already been commenced.

Inasmuch as the high school would have to close Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, because of teachers' institutes and the convention of the California Teachers' Association, and inasmuch as many students desire to work through the holidays, beginning Saturday, the board voted to make all of next week a holiday and give teachers opportunity to hear noted speakers who will be on institute programs in Pasadena, Los Angeles and elsewhere. School will reopen January 2.

CITY MANAGER REEVES ISSUES EXPLANATION OF AIR PORT PURCHASE

In Signed Statement to the Glendale Daily Press Mr. William H. Reeves Discusses Publicity Given Action of Councilmen

DECLARES ACTED ON REQUEST OF DEDERICH

Says Additional Inducement Found in Desire of Number of Firms Connected With Airplane Industry to Lease Portion of Tract

The following communication has been received by the Glendale Daily Press for publication, from City Manager Reeves, regarding the purchase Saturday of 33 acres at $66,000 by the city council for an airport. The explanation in its subject matter does not differ materially from that printed yesterday in the Glendale Daily Press:

To the Editor:

The publicity given in your issue of Tuesday evening with reference to the purchase of 33 acres of land by the City of Glendale might be open to misconstruction. For this reason the City Council authorizes the following statement:

The thirty-three acres of land was purchased by the city at the request of the superintendent of plant and production as water bearing land adjacent to that which the city now owns, on which additional wells and reservoirs will later be located for the purpose of assuring an adequate supply of water to the people of Glendale.

An additional inducement for the purchase of this land at this time was found in the fact that a number of firms connected with the airplane industry are very desirous of leasing a portion of this ground for use as an airport at a price which would furnish a considerable revenue to the city of Glendale. This airport, if established, would not in any way interfere with the use of the land by the water department of the city of Glendale and would be entirely incidental thereto.

The official minutes of the City Council bearing upon this purchase read as follows:

"WHEREAS, it has been called to the attention of the City Council that lots 4, 5, and 6 of Block 96, of Rancho Providencia and Scott Tract, comprising thirty-three acres can be prchased for the sum of $66,000.00 on the following terms, to-wit:

"$16,500.00 cash payable December 9, 1922; $16,500.00 payable on or before December 9, 1924; $16,500.00 payable on or before December 9, 1925; and $16,500.00 payable on or before December 9, 1926, with interest at 7 per cent, and

"WHEREAS, said real estate is adjoining the sixteen acres now owned by the city of Glendale, being water bearing land, on which a pumping plant is now in use by the City of Glendale for supplying the inhabitonts thereof with water, and

"WHEREAS, the Superintendent of Plant and Production recommends the purchase of the same for additional water bearing lands for the City of Glendale,

"NOW THEREFORE, the Mayor and City Clerk are hereby authorized and instructed to execute a contract for the purchase of said lands for the said sum of $66,000.00 payable as follows:

"$16,500 cash payable December 9, 1922; $16,500.00 payable on or before December 9, 1924; $16,500.00 payable on or before December 9, 1925; and $16,500.00 payable on or before December 9, 1926, with interest at 7 per cent.

"BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that the Mayor of the City of Glendale be authorized and instructed on behalf of the said City to this day enter into escrow for the purchase of said lands on said terms, and

"BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That the sum of $16,500.00 be appropriated from the Public Service Fund and a warrant drawn for the same, said warrant to be deposited in escrow this day for the purchase of said lands."

WILLIAM H. REEVES,
City Manager.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS CONFORM TO HI XMAS VACATION

Board of Education Receives Pledge of Lease on Present Hi Plant

Following the conference of trustees of school districts included in Glendale Union High School at the high school Tuesday evening, members of the Board of Education went into executive session and voted to have the Christmas vacation in the city schools conform to that of the high school and begin at the close of school Friday night instead of next Monday night. School will not be resumed until January 2.

The board also received from high school trustees who likewise went into executive session, a resolution pledging its willingness to lease the present high school buildings to the Board of Education as soon as it can move into the new high school buildings.

No other business was transacted.

CHICK PROCTOR IS SENTENCED FOR 'ALCO-DRIVING'

Charged With Transporting Liquor While Intoxicated in Auto

Chick S. Proctor of Glendale, was, according to a notice which appeared in a Los Angeles newspaper this morning, found guilty in the court of Justice Dunham of Pasadena, yesterday, on a charge of transporting liquor, intoxication and reckless driving, and was sentenced to either pay $225 or spend eighty days in jail.

Proctor, continues the news item, was arrested with two companions, W. H. Bosley of Los Angeles, and Edward VanDyke of Marcell Inn, Altadena. Bosley plead not guilty to an intoxication charge and will be tried today. Van Dyke, who is charged with intoxication, was given a sentence of $50 or twenty days.

According to the news item, the police claim that the three men stopped at the home of Mrs. M. G. Morton, 25 South Orange Grove avenue, Pasadena, at 3 o'clock in the morning and requested a loan of $2. It is stated that none of those living in the house knew any of the men.

SANITARIUM CEREMONIES CANCELLED

On account of the rain, the ground breaking exercise for the new Glendale Sanitarium has been called off entirely. This program was to have been given Sunday, December 17, but as it would be almost impossible for machines to get to the location, there will be no program until the laying of the corner stone. This announcement was made today by C. E. Kimlin.

WOMAN IS KIDNAPPED ON CENTRAL

Screams Alarm Residents of 600 Block North

THROWN INTO CAR

Police Unable to Find Trace of Men Who Disappear in Darkness

The screams of a woman who was being dragged against her will into an automobile by several unidentified men shortly after 6 o'clock Tuesday night, sent terror into the hearts of the residents of the 600 block on North Central avenue, Glendale. Mrs. John Everson, 611 North Central, who was attracted by the helpless woman's cries, telephoned to the Glendale police and Lieutenant Griffin and Officers Sims and Baugh hastened to the scene, but were unable to find the machine.

When Mrs. Everson first saw the struggling woman in the arms of the men, the victim was fighting desperately to break from the grasp of her captors. She was screaming and struggling frantically. The men, according to the report turned into the police department by Mrs. Everson, literally picked the woman up and forced her into the car, which was close to the curb.

As soon as she was in the machine one of the men held her while the other drove north on Central and disappeared in the darkness. Mrs. Everson could not tell the make of the machine, but noticed that the first three figures on the license plate were 518.

For a long time after the incident the Central avenue neighborhood was closely watched by local police, but no trace of the automobile in question was found.

The police of Burbank and Eagle Rock were notified and kept a sharp watch throughout the remainder of the night.

This is the second case of apparent abduction that has occurred in Glendale within a month. The police have been unable to trace the woman. The first one occurred on South Central in the region of Riverdale Drive, when a woman was dragged into a machine by three men. After forcing the woman into the machine the car was turned west on Riverdale, only to turn back a short time later onto Central, at which time the woman was still screaming. This incident occurred at 2:20 o'clock in the morning of November 20. Nothing was ever learned as to the identity of the abductors. The matter was reported to the Glendale police by Leroy W. Bosserman, of 614 South Central avenue.

CRUEL WIFE, SHE WIGGLED HER TOES

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 13.—Russell F. Koontz considered it cruelty and ground for divorce, according to his complaint, when his wife "wiggled her toes in bed."

Mrs. Koontz declared that her husband assucer her of cruelty, and then proceeded to practice it by slapping and spanking her, and by swearing at her.

"Did you swear at her?" asked the judge.

"Well, when I swore, she swore right back," said Koontz.

TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY ATTEND VALLEY CHAMBERS MEETING TO-GET-TOGETHER

Jesse E. Smith, President of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce Has Narrow Escape on the Return Trip From Meeting

GLENDALE IS HONORED AT GATHERING

Meeting of the San Fernando Valley Chambers of Commerce Is Success in Spite of Rain; Bentley Is Chosen Vice President

Jesse Smith began his term of servitude as president and official head of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce with an adventure Tuesday night which was shared by Mrs. Smith, Secretary and Mrs. James M. Rhoades, who motored to Lankershim to attend the meeting of the San Fernando Valley Association of Chambers of Commerce.

Coming home at 11:30 they encountered the wreck of an auto truck standing on the highway without lights.

To avoid it they turned out and dropped into a trench made soft by the rain in which gas pipes had just been laid and were kept there until 2 a. m., when a heavy gravel truck chanced along and pulled them out. In the meantime policemen appeared about midnight and took the ladies home.

About 250 representatives from all parts of the valley were guests at the dinner and session which followed when officers were elected as follows:

President, Bert Halloway of San Fernando; vice-president, G. A. Allard of Zelzah; second vice-president, George Bentley of Glendale; third vice-president, H. H. Breidt; secretary treasurer, A. G. Shaw of Mission Acres.

After the business session a fine program of numbers contributed by the various associations represented was given. Because of the rain Glendale's artist, Miss Hazel Linkogel, was unable to attend, and President Jesse Smith was called upon for a speech which he delivered with credit to himself and the Glendale chamber.

This Rain Is Not the Regular for This Time of Year

The record of the rain gauge of T. W. Preston of North Jackson street, taken at 7 a. m. today, showed the precipitation for 24 hours to be 1.72 inches; for the storm to that hour, 2.79 inches, and for the season, 5.71 inches, compared with 1.08 inches last year at a corresponding date, or more than five tmies that of one year ago.

M'LEAN JURY IS DISCHARGED ON DISAGREEMENT

Failed to Find Verdict After 6 Hours of Considering Testimony

A jury disagreement resulted at 12 o'clock last night in the case against G. H. McLean, 1531 South Central avenue, who was tried in Judge Lowe's court Tuesday on a charge of exhibiting a deadly weapon in a rude manner. Testimony was heard from 10 o'clock in the morning until 6 o'clock at night, at which time the jury retired for the purpose of endeavoring to reach a verdict in the case. At midnight that body had reached no decision and was dismissed by the court. A retrial of the case will be set some time today by Judge Lowe and will probably be held some time in January.

The state was represented by Deputy District Attorney Glover, and the defense was represented by Attorney Burt Woodard.

The case will be remembered as the one which caused considerable comment a short time ago, when an officer shook the door of the garage in which Mr. and Mrs. McLean were sleeping. As a result of the altercation which followed, Mr. McLean was arrested.

AUTO ACCIDENTS

Two automobile accidents occurred in Glendale on Tuesday. Machines operated by M. C. McCarter, 411 West Arden, and H. H. Robids, address unknown, collided on Cypress street at 7:15 o'clock. Little damage was done.

Another accident occurred when cars driven by Ernest L. Shockley, 615 West Salem, and Mr. Colas, 345 West Harvard street, came together, the mishap occurring at the corner of Broadway and Central at 5:40 o'clock. Mr. Colas was injured slightly and was taken home by Mr. Shockley, according to the records at the police department.

THE WEATHER

Southern California: Tonight and Thursday, occasional rain.

Pacific-Southwest Review

By D. H. SMITH

Manager Brand Boulevard Branch Pacific Southwest Trust and Savings Bank

D.H.Smith

Many people regard a banker merely as a custodian of community funds. He provides a place of safety in which to store their surplus money, pays interest on their savings, provides the privileges and protection of the checking account and will loan money on suitable security. Through not being better acquainted with their banker they place these limitations upon the service he can perform. And in so doing they overlook one of the most important of all his services—the benefit of his experience and knowledge of the business of the community.

People should learn to call upon their banker for business advice, just as they seek their doctor for medical assistance or their lawyer in legal matters. The banker is a trained specialist. He is possessed of a valuable fund of information which he will gladly impart to his customers to assist them in making profitable investments and to protect them from pitfalls which are apparent to his trained eye. It is to his advantage to assist his customers, for the progress of his bank depends upon their progress.

The officers of the Brand boulevard and Glendale avenue branches of the Pacific-Southwest Trust & Savings Bank invite their customers to consult with them in business matters. The advice they give is founded upon long experience in this community and an intimate acquaintance with its business conditions, as well as upon authoritative information regarding any portion of the country or any business activity which they may secure through other branches located in the particular district in question or through the Research Department of the bank in Los Angeles.

OLD TIME SING CALL IS ISSUED

Xmas Carolers Summoned to Hi Auditorium on Monday Evening

STEWART TO LEAD

First of Series of Varied Programs in Recreation to Be Given

Glendale's Christmas carolers will hold an old-fashioned community sing at the High School auditorium Monday evening, December 18, to which everybody in Glendale, whether they think they can sing or not, are heartily invited. Under the leadership of Alexander Stewart, music organizer community service for the Pacific Coast, several Christmas carols will be sung, which will be followed by an excellent musical program. This is only one of a series of varied programs which the community service of Glendale has planned for the recreational and social activities of the city and there has already been a goodly number of inquiries concerning the Community Christmas tree celebration and the singing of Christmas carols. Plans are being formulated for different groups to visit people who are ill, as well as the poor, giving a regular old-fashioned carol melody. The carol that has been chosen for today's publication is the internationally known "Silent Night."

SILENT NIGHT

Silent night, Holy night,
All is calm, all is bright
Round you Virgin Mother and Child.
Holy Infant so tender and mild,
Sleep in heavenly peace,
Sleep in heavenly peace!

Silent night, Holy night,
Shepherds quake at the sight,
Glories stream from heaven afar,
Heavenly hosts sing Alleluia;
Christ the Saviour is born!
Christ the Saviour is born!

Silent night, Holy night,
Son of God, love's pure light
Radiant beams from Thy holy face,
Wtih the dawn of redeeming grace,
Jesus, Lord, at Thy birth,
Jesus, Lord, at Thy birth.

"SILENT NIGHT"

Probably no carol is so universally known, loved and sung as this simple German song. For years its origin was unknown, but supposed to date back centuries. A few years ago Ludwig Erk investigated and found that it was produced in 1818. The poem was written by Joseph Mohr, at the time assistant priest in Oberndorf, in South Germany; the melody was composed by Franz Gruber, a school master. On Christmas eve of that year it was sung in the church at Oberndorf. The poet, who had a tenor voice, sang the melody, the composer, a bass, sang a second part, and a hastily recruited choir of young women, the refrain. A guitar furnished the accompaniment, the organ being out of order. Twenty years or so later a family of strolling singers from the Tyrol added it to their repertoire, and in 1840 it was printed in Leipsic, as a "genuine Tyrolean" song. For many years (and still in certain song books) the composer of the song was given as Joseph Haydn, probably meaning the great Franz Joseph Haydn.

A touching description of the effect of this song is given in Zona Gale's short story, "A Great Tree." Certainly nothing can more quickly give the spiritual atmosphere of the manger birth than the singing of this simple song.

A Daily Tour of Glendale Stores

RADKE'S PUMPKIN-FORD CONTEST SUCCEEDS

Unusual interest is being centered in the Ford guessing contest that is being conducted by Ed M. Radke, the jeweler, located at 109½ South Brand boulevard.

For years, during which time Mr. Radke conducted a jewelry business in the northern part of the state, he has given away a Ford simply as an advertising proposition. So satisfactory have been the results that the contests have been continued from year to year. He finds these contests an excellent method of acquainting the public with his unusually high class of merchandise, as well as with his expert watch and clock repairing. It also serves as a very satisfactory method of introducing his optical work to his many patrons.

In Mr. Radke's window is a large pumpkin, probably one of the largest ever brought to Glendale. For every dollar spent at his store between now and New Year's Day he will give one guess. The person who guesses nearest to the exact number of seeds in the pumpkin gets the Ford. There are no strings to this offer. Everything is aboveboard. All you have to do is to make the purchase, register your guess, and call on New Year's Day for your Ford.

SHAFE BOOK STORE IS UNUSUAL PLACE

A late addition to the business life of Glendale, and one that is a credit to this city, is the Shafe Book Store, 123-A South Brand boulevard, which opened its doors to the Glendale public last Saturday morning. J. H. Shafe, proprietor of this establishment, has been in the book and stationery business for the past 17 years, and in the selection of the stock for his store at this place he has shown unusually good judgment, for the things that are to be found there are right in keeping with the demands of the Glendale public. Everything is new and right up-to-the minute.

In this establishment is found an unusually fine line of the very latest books—one of the most complete stocks, in fact, ever seen in any store in this city. According to Mr. Shafe, only a small portion of his books have been unpacked. More are being received daily, and the only trouble he finds is finding room for the elaborate stock he has ordered. There are books for the young, as well as the old, a fine line of gift books being among the collection.

The Eaton, Crane & Pike company's stationery is carried exclusively by this store, and this may be secured in any pride and quality. A big line of office supplies will be kept constantly on hand, and there are art goods and pictures. One of the pleasing features of the store is the line of Spanish imported pottery, which is complete and charmingly unique.

There are hand-painted china pieces of all kinds, glassware, hammered copper goods, and the like. A unique card rack, which at this time holds 2,700 holiday and birthday cards, is located at the right of the entrance.

The fixtures of the store, which were manufactured by the Pacific Cabinet and Fixture company of 819 Milford street, Glendale, were designed by the proprietor of this store and are finished in battleship gray stippled in blue and gold.

Mr. Shafe and family have come to Glendale to stay. Several years ago they lived in Glendale, but for some reason they strayed away. However, they returned recently and purchased a home at 508 West Pioneer, where they are now living.

LINT

By J. G. S.

"Lint—that collects
Where one least expects."

Wyoming woman objects to being mistaken for Clara Phillips. Doesn't lay claim to ever having been frisky with a hammer, or reckless with the Los Angeles County Jail.

What everyone is wanting to know is what "Oska loosa," if Clara was found in Iowa. Nebraska constable suggests that maybe Oscar is a former admirer of the Tiger Girl. At any rate, when they thought they had her in Wyoming, it was suddenly found that a surprising number of people claim to be from Missouri.

A search for Clara Phillips, like missionary work, should begin at home, authorities have decided. They are beginning to ask, Have you a little Clara in your home? And many a resident with a guilty pre-Volstead conscience, gives the whole thing away, when he mistakes the word Clara for claret. Ask the Federal officers if they are not busier since the search for Clara started in Los Angeles.

WHEN They Find Her

She couldn't vamp the jury,
She couldn't vamp the judge,
They don't know how she did it,
But she made the jail bars budge.

They've searched along the border,
They've searched along the shore,
And if they ever find her
They'll make her take the floor.

They'll want to know how she escaped,
And when she's told the tale
There may be others to apply
For lodging in the jail.

Take it from a newspaper fan, Alice in Wonderland had nothing on Clara Phillips. Alice went down a rabbit hole only while she dreamed, but Clara went through the bars at the County Jail only while some other people dreamed. They haven't found the "evidence" of what she drank to cause the necessary shrinkage.

Our idea of a public servant is one who will give special rates on figuring income tax. There's just one time when an income tax is unpopular, and that is when the tax bill comes in.

A dusty rookie was doing guard duty for the first time. Along came one of those officers who wear silver chickens on their shoulders. The rookie naturally got excited and flustered.

"Halt!" he yelped, and then stopped.

"Well, what are you going to do next?" inquired the colonel after he had remained on the spot like a graven image for some seconds.

"I ain't sure, boss," admitted the darky. Then he added dangerously. "But, by golly, yo' better stan' right whah yo' is till I thinks what Ise to do."—American Legion Weekly.

What People Say of Community Service

A CHIEF OF POLICE:

"Is it possible at this time to extend the work of the Community Service recreation League? I realize so fully the relation of the present outbreak of crime to the wrong use of leisure that I consider it my duty not only to strain every energy to suppress it by the means at my command, but to see if something more cannot be done in a constructive way to prevent it. The work of your organization has been effective in certain districts. Can't it be extended?"—Chief O'Brien, San Francisco Police Force.

A CHAMBER OF COMMERCE SECRETARY:

"Community Service is wonderful. You can make no mistake."—Edwin M. Wilson, Richmond, Indiana.

A SUPERIOR COURT JUDGE:

"I feel that Cincinnati Community Service has gotten hold of the true method of enabling the individual to find out and express what is most worth while in himself. In this manner men and women who otherwise would never have an opportunity of being a part of active community life are given the chance."—Robert S. Marx, Cincinnati, Ohio.

A PAST-PRESIDENT KIWANIS CLUB:

"Community Service during the last year has had Elmirans unitedly playing football, baseball, skating, hiking, even pitching quoits. Numerous leagues for seasonal games furnished much good sport and brought local people together as never before. Success in the sports is to be followed by a historical pageant, dramatic work on large scale. Community Service is growing in value and popularity in Elmira."—George S. Crandall, Elmira, N. Y.

A ROTARY CLUB PRESIDENT:

"Consider Community Service the best thing ever attempted here. Being accepted with great enthusiasm and interest." — Rev. C. H. Branch, Texarkana, Ark-Tex.

AN ARCHBISHOP:

To prove his confidence in the splendid work being done under the Community Service Recreation League organization, His Grace, the Archbishop Hanna, has promised $1200 for the San Francisco work for the year 1922.

TUESDAY CLUB HEARS MUSIC OF HEALING

Dr. B. G. Kingsley Plays Selections Calculated to Calm Anger

Members of the Tuesday Afternoon Club had an unusual experience in their meeting this week in which they were addressed by Dr. Bruce Gordon Kingsley on the healing power of music, the speaker playing piano selections calculated to calm anger, overcome insomnia, cure dyspepsia and relieve rheumatism, his opinion seeming to be that every little ailment has a melody all its own which is curative.

The address followed the usual community sing, led by Hugo Kirchoffer, in which Christmas carols were sung, and the business session over which Mrs. Daniel Campbell presided. Club activities to raise money were set forth by Mrs. A. H. Montgomery, first vice-president and chairman of ways and means, who also presided over the birthday march, to which about half a dozen ladies responded, while Mrs. Hollingsworth played "Marching Through Georgia," the returns being something over $4. Mrs. W. E. Evans, general curator, announced section meetings and Mrs. Campbell briefly outlined plans for the furnishing of the new club house, urging members to subscribe to the chair fund of which Mrs. C. W. Houston is chairman, and the gift and memorial fund of which Mrs. Stephen Packer had charge. She also mentioned the plans for the installation of an accusticon for the benefit of members who are deaf, and named Mrs. W. W. McElroy as one who would be glad to secure the names of those interested. Members of the new furnishing committee as named by the president are: Mrs. W. E. Evans, Mrs. C. O. Pulliam, Mrs. William MacMullin, Mrs. Harry Lockwood and Mrs. H. E. Boyer.

The speaker, when introduced by the president as a physician, surgeon and musician, referred to the great strides made by the healing art during the past 200 years and of the crude methods employed, especially before anaesthetics were discovered. He expressed the opinion that George Washington died from the exhaustion of the blood letting practiced in those days to reduce fevers. Coming down to our own day he said:

"All the schools are beginning to realize that we have within us a store of healing thoughts and if we only allow it, we can be well. In other words it is the tendency of nature for us to be in good health. We violate the laws of nature and frequently by our very method of living make it harder for nature to do what nature intends to do if we will but give her a chance."

He declared that wrong feelings indulged engender poisons and as a melody calculated to dissipate anger played "The Flowers that Bloom in the Spring," and recommended Sousa's marches to cure sulkiness.

While he admitted that music is not a cure all and that an overdose of jazz may drive one to insanity, he seemed to think music would speedily restore many a patient if artfully applied. For insomnia he suggested lullabys, playing several Christmas carols softly, beginning with "Holy Night," followed by "O Sanctissima," and a lullaby by Mrs. Beach.

Relative to dyspepsia he declared if he had his way the quick lunch eating places would be required to play funeral marches to slow down their speed. Remedial music for that complaint he insisted should be soothing but at the same time should work up to a clamix and build up the organs while resting them. As a sample of the correct prescription he played the "Prize Song" from the Meistersinger (Wagner). Deafness, he said, had been greatly helped by musical treatment which began with the slow playing of the chromatic scale until a note was reached which the patient could hear. That would be emphasized and then the notes above and below played for a time, the patient concentrating his mind on the lesson and being advanced from day to day as his hearing improved.

Music expressive of sympathy and comradeship was recommended for insanity and melancholia, the illustrative numbers played being "Schubert's "Thou Art My Peace," and Gottschalk's "Last Hope."

Rheumatism, the doctor explained, is brought about by sluggish circulation and the deposit of limey substances around the joints. To stimulate circulation he recommended "The Ride of the Valkyries" (Wagner) which he played quite splendidly.

In closing he urged his audience to use music more in their lives as a help to bring about that peace on earth, good will toward men which we are all seeking.

Mrs. Campbell thanked him on behalf of the club for his entertaining talk, and in closing wished every member a "Merry Christmas."

Mrs. J. P. Thompson is president of the class and she is leaving the latter part of the week for Philadelphia and this will be her last meeting for some time. A large attendance is expected.

THURSDAY MORNING BIBLE CLASS WILL MEET TOMORROW

The Thursday Morning Bible class for women will meet at the Presbyterian church tomorrow at 10 o'clock. The teacher, Mrs. A. L. Dennis of Los Angeles, will have charge. Mrs. Dennis has the rare faculty of presenting scripture truth in such a manner as to deeply interest and delight all her hearers. Such interest has been shown in these classes by the women of Glendale that it has become necessary to move the class from the Sunday school room to the auditorium of the church in order to accommodate the increasing numbers who are attending each session. At the session last week the women voted with enthusiastic unanimity to receive a free will offering as an expression of appreciation of Mrs. Dennis. The class is undenominational and is open and free to all the women of Glendale.

DAINTY FLORAL WEDDING AT THE BUCKLAND HOME

The attractive Spanish home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Buckland at Doran and Geneva Streets, Glendale, was the scene of a very pretty wedding last night, Tuesday, December 12, 1922, when their daughter, Daisy Johnston, became the bride of Manton Lewis White, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Mrs. Buckland in taupe and flame colored charmeuse was assisted in receiving guests by Mrs. Harry White, who wore a gown of grey silk brocade.

Mrs. L. Roy Black of 605 North Howard street sang delightfully "All for You" (D'Hardelot) and was accompanied by Mr. Black, who also rendered several instrumental selections. The house was gay with masses of pink sweet peas and greenery and softly shaded lights. The ceremony was performed in front of the fire place, which was banked with pink Cochet roses. A dainty two-course supper was served after the wedding.

At the conclusion of a two weeks' motor trip through Southern California the young couple will be at home temporarily with the bridegroom's parents at 600 North Jackson street. Mr. White is in the automobile business with his father at Brand boulevard and San Fernando road.

Many new phases of life on the mission field will be portrayed and vividly described by Mrs. Kelly. Mrs. Kelly speaks as an eyewitness for she has spent nearly ten years in mission work in India. A freewill offering will be received as a token of appreciation of Mrs. Kelly. Mrs. Kelly will speak, rain or shine. ADVANTAGES OF JUNIOR HI TOLD BY WHITE

Superintendent of Glendale Schools Describes Operation

At the conference of trustees of elementary school districts included in the high school district, held at Glendale high Tuesday night, in response to the call of President Thomas D. Watson, the presiding chairman, Superintendent Richardson D. White set forth the arguments in favor of junior high schools formulated as the result of his study of the subject.

He called attention to the fact that in its intermediate schools Glendale has had a partial junior high system in that it has provided a number of elective subjects in addition to the fundamentals, these electives including art, agriculture, sewing, cooking, etc.

"Were all these made obligatory," he explained, "so little time could be alloted to each the instruction would be almost valueless, but by making them elective pupils taking them can be given two or three times as much instruction as they would otherwise receive. With the latitude allowed in the intermediate schools the board has been able to introduce with the approval of the county board, Latin, Spanish and typewriting, which are not ordinarily taught."

Mr. White marshalled his reasons for approving the junior high, first from the viewpoint that it affords a logical division of the school course, and second from the standpoint of the course of study. Said he: "Why did we ever make a division into eight years of elementary and four of high school? As nearly as I can tell, the common school antedated the high school a long time. It developed into an 8-year-school because of the effort to keep the pupils in school as long as they could and eight years was about the limit. By that time they had to go to work.

"About ten years ago the National Educational association, consisting of teachers and educators from all parts of the country, appointed a committee to study the organization of the school system and report on the question of reorganization. That committee took up the matter from the standpoint of the child's development. They figured that the natural eras of the child's development were the only rational basis on which to form a plan of organization. The committee consisted of the head of the department of education of New York, the president of the University of Washington and superintendents of schools in several of our largest cities. This committee reported that the six, three and three division was a sound basis from the viewpoint of the development of the child.

"Since that time this has spread over the country so that junion high schools have been organized in all parts of the United States. We have a great many in California but they are in a process of crystalization into definite form. Los Angeles has had that type for 12 years. Oakland has ten such schools in all stages of development. Towns around us are organizing them and Venice has opened one this year.

"In studying the problem we find the first six years in school are a comparatively stable period in the child's development. He grows much faster before and after that period, mentally as well as physically. A child's brain is as large at eight as it ever is. Up to that time he has not developed to any great extent his reasoning powers. It is during those first six years that we teach children by rote; when the child thinks the teacher knows everything. It is the time when he is willing to accept things on authority. It is the time when we can teach him the multiplication table, but as to logical reasoning—he does not know much about it.

"Then comes a change. From 12 to 15 is a period known as early adolescence or the pre-adolescent period that changes children to adults, just about the period they woud enter junior high. It is a period of storm and stress in the child's mental development when he is losing his child point of view and gaining his adult point of view. It is the most difficult period in which to handle a child; it is about that time boys get the idea they want to run away from home. The boy and girl do not know what they want.

"It is logical to take all the children in that period and put them together and make a course of study to fit their condition. In this period children belong neither with younger nor older ones.

"The social problem in the high school calls for a great deal of study to be handled right. When a boy goes into the ninth grade he thinks he is entitled to all the liberty and privileges of any student in the school. The longer we can hold him back from social contact with those older, the better it is for the child.

"When it comes to the course of study, I believe up to and through the sixth grade we are all right pedegogically in framing a course for all the children, because there are certain things they all need and have to have to be intelligent citizens. But after the sixth grade we can begin to fit the course to the individual child. It would be much simpler and easier if we could look three years ahead instead of two years. The child breaks off and has to start over again in the high school. In Spanish, for example, we could do twice as much in three years as we can in two years and the same thing applies all along the line.

"From the view point of the social value of the junior high, the child becomes adjusted to high school methods through being cut loose from his teacher's apron strings, because in junior high the whole plan is based on giving the child liberty and making him responsible.

"I have made some effort to get statistics of cost and have not been very successful except from the city of Los Angeles. That city pays teachers in junior high schools the same salaries it pays its senior high teachers, the difference in cost is therefore very little. In Pasadena the pay of junior high teachers is about halfway between that of senior high and elementary teachers. In our elementary schools about 80 percent of the entire maintenance expense is for salaries.

"The Los Angeles figures for the average cost of elementary schools for all maintenance purposes exclusive of buildings, is $84.41 per pupil; for junior high $141.24 and for senior high $148.80.

"Our figures last year in Glendale for elementary schools were $62.24, or about 30 percent less than those of Los Angeles. Mr. Martin, business manager of the Pasadena schools, said they received from the elementary schools an amount equal to the average cost of educating a child in the elementary schools. In this case it would be for Glendale $62.24. In addition to that, elementary school funds furnished all supplies for junior high schools. Where a junior high was using an elementary school building a sum was transferred from the high school funds to the elementary system to cover rent. Mr. Keppel said if the same salary schedule is adopted for junior and senior high teachers, the cost will be about the same. The average cost per pupil of the Glendale high is $157.08."

Principal George U. Moyse endorsed the points made by Mr. White, emphasizing the value of the high school system of discipline in developing individual responsibility. He stated that the average cost per pupil in the five elementary school districts included in the high school district is $59.20 against $157.08 for the high school, adding that Mr. Keppel had said in the event that the board established junior high schools it would have to make a bargain with each one of the several districts, according to the cost of educating pupils in the six grades that remain. The cost of the 7th and 8th grades would not be increased, he said, over the cost of the first six grades, and the additional cost to the high school would be the difference between what the high school cost per unit of attendance and the elementary cost per unit of attendance.

Superintendent E. E. Harwood of Eagle Rock said he would back everything Mr. White had said and he hoped the junior high organization would go through.

Principal Fred Axe of Tujunga warmly endorsed Mr. White's representations relative to junior high schools, saying "I believe the material arguments could be summed up in the statement that the junior high makes all other reforms more easily accomplished. We know by looking back ten years that education is not now where it was then and if we could look ahead 20 years we would find the child having quite a different curriculum from what he has now. Our elementary school has gotten into several ruts in its eighth year requirements in curriculum and methods of discipline and also into a legal rut. The junior high, being a new institution, has not all of these old traditions and requirements to bind it. It has more leeway in its curriculum. We know how inadvisable it is to try to cover all the subjects required. In the junior high, everything we like can be put into the school without breaking any chains. It is a great step in California where the law binds the elementary school down so closely."

Trustee H. V. Brown asked why the junior high had been put under the supervision of the high instead of the elementary system.

Mr. White replied that he did not know and could see no reason why it should not be under the elementary system, that he believed it to be a mistake on the part of the law. Said he: "I think we should have one educational system beginning with the kindergarten and going on through the high school. There are few states in the union where that distinction is made under two entirely separate systems. The city of Los Angeles theoretically has two boards, but actually one which transacts the business of the elementary system and then adjourns to have a meeting of the other board."

Trustee Campbell questioned whether the high school district could stand the extra expense of a junior high system, saying that it is now up to its bonding capacity, but was reminded by Mr. White that its bonding capacity would increase at a rapid rate. Trustee Brown voiced some misgivings but said he was in sympathy with the junior high idea, particularly since Mr. White's talk.

This brought the discussion to the point where Mr. Morgan's resolution of recommendation as published elsewhere, was offered and adopted, and the conference adjourned.

ST. MARK'S LADIES HAVE PARTY AND SUPPER

Despite the stormy night, a large crowd attended the dinner and entertainment given by the ladies of St. Mark's Guild on Tuesday night in the Guild hall. This was the last of a series of dinners and as usual proved a huge success.

The long, white tables were artistically decorated with yellow baby chrysanthemums and ferns and the delicious supper, in charge of Mrs. J. H. Murphie, was served at 6 o'clock. Mrs. Murphie was assisted by Miss Louise Packer in charge of the tables, Mrs. Stoner in charge of the salad and Dr. Eble in charge of the dessert. Mrs. Archie Parker had charge of a fancy work booth where many pretty and dainty articles were sold.

Following the dinner, a delightful program was presented in charge of Miss Lilla Litch of the Emerson School of Self-Expression. It included the following numbers: Piano duet from Il Trovatore, (Verdi), by Miss Gertrude Champlain and Miss Lilla Litch; reading by Mrs. Verna S. Mitchell; piano solo "Witches Dance" by Joseph Kitt; reading, Mrs. Verna S. Mitchell; duet, "Pastoral," and "Country Dance" from Nell Gwyn (German) by Miss Gertrude Champlain and Miss Lilla Litch.

At the close of the program a few remarks of greeting were given by Dr. Cornell of Pasadena and by Rev. Kemp, the new rector of St. Mark's Episcopal church. R. E. Downing gave a few words on the present crowded condition and work of the Sunday school.

Warren, prominent Kansas City lawyer, who, it is said, will marry Miss Nancy Jordan, the comely young English woman, who has been permitted to enter America, with her three-year-old son, as the guest of Warren's divorced and wealthy wife. The report comes from Kansas City that Warren may marry the young woman.

EAGLE ROCK TO MARK PASSING OF 1922

To Hold Big Dance at Women's Clubhouse on Dec. 30

One of the biggest events of the year for Eagle Rock club women is to be the dance given December 30 at the Women's club. If it were not for the fact that New Year's Eve comes on a Sunday, this dance would be called the New Year's Eve event, but as it is it will be the eve of New Year's Eve dance.

Mrs. A. R. Rose, Mrs. W. E. Sexton and Mrs. Ed. Thompson are hostesses and have secured the Raymond orchestra from the Raymond hotel, Pasadena, to furnish such music, as they declare, Eagle Rock dancers never heard before. While the date is as yet in the distance, the reception committee already has its plans under way and are figuring on receiving the largest number to attend a club dance in Eagle Rock.

In a recent county court case one of the witnesses was a cabman who did not deny that he had "little love for the motor car."

He raised a roar of laughter by describing the defendant chauffeur as a "chiffonier!"

On repeating the blunder, he was pulled up by counsel for the defense.

"Chauffeur, my friend chauffeur!" corrected the latter. "A chiffonier, you know, is an ornamental, wooden——"

"Oh, well," interrupted the witness, with a nod in the direction of the chauffeur, "call him what you like. I dare say we're both pretty near the mark!"

DEATHS — FUNERALS

ARTHUR Al ROYCROFT

Arthur Al Roycroft, twelve-year-old son of Mrs. Mamie Roycroft, passed away December 12. He leaves besides his mother, a brother, Stanley Roycroft, and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Hollister of Chino, Cal. Funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon at 2:30 in the parlors of the Jewel City Undertaking company, with interment in Forest Lawn Memorial Park.

Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Son, Now 21, Comes Into $17,000,000 Inheritance

William K. Vanderbilt, son of Alfred G. Vanderbilt, Lusitania victim, was twenty-one years old on November 24. Reginald C. Vanderbilt, an uncle, has been holding the estate in trust. Young Mr. Vanderbilt is rather retiring and has had little to do with social affairs. He intends to enter the banking business and already has a position with one of the important New York financial institutions.

William Doublex is noted for his nerve, his shortness of temper, and his scarcity of cash. While he was seated at a lonely breakfast in his club one morning, a debt collector broke in through the drowsiness of the porter at the door, and presented his bill.

"Sir," said William, glaring at him, "is that all you know of the usages of decent society? To present a bill to a man breakfasting, sir? Don't you know that you are an intruder in this club, sir? Do you know I could call the servants and have you thrown out? If you wish to talk business, go outside and send in your card."

The collector went out and sent in his card. William picked it up between thumb and forefinger, adjusted his monocle, and read it.

"Tell the gentleman," he said, sweetly, "that I am not in."

Every time the average man makes a fool of himself he proceeds to advertise the fact.

THE REALLY RICH

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.
(Copyright, 1922, by The Associated Newspapers.)

"Who is the richest man in the world?"

Such was the question put the other day to John D. Rockefeller, Jr. Here is his answer:

"I do not know. And I do not know any way of finding out."

Multitudes doubtless marveled at this last statement.

Surely, in these days of income tax insistence on knowing to the last cent what one annually receives, it would seem an easy thing to establish Who is Who in the matter of riches. Why, then, should John D. Rockefeller, Jr., suggest that it is one of the most difficult of things?

Because, quite rightly, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., felt that, in the last analysis, money is no sound criterion of wealth.

As a matter of fact, the richest man in the world may be a man who has not a dollar invested in stocks and bonds, who has none of the fame afforded by Dun's or Bradstreet's, who perhaps is menaced by proceedings in the court of bankruptcy.

Yet he remains the richest because:

No one possesses in such measure as he the joy of living.

No one has such abundance of love and good-will to his fellow-men.

No one has rendered such service to the world into which he was born, contributing as he does to the end for which God created the universe.

No one is so self-sufficing, competent to find happiness in solitude, competent to appreciate and draw joy from the best in art, in literature, in music, in philosophy and religion.

It was only a few days before John D. Rockefeller, Jr., confessed his inability to name the world's richest man and his disbelief in the ability of anybody else to name him that that shrewd present-day philosopher of success, B. C. Forbes, laid down this principle:

"The man who cannot fill his heart with love for his fellow-mortals may fill his pay-enevelope or his bank account to overflowing, but he still remains a pitiable bankrupt, a lamentable failure."

Measured by this measure, an incredibly rich man died quite recently when Lyman Abbott died. So, too, when his younger colleague died, that much loved President of the United States, Theodore Roosevelt.

And it is the measure, I would insist, that all should use when evaluating their own status in life.

Test yourself.

Your creditors may account you a poor man if you cannot send them a check by the 10th of every month. They may deem you colossally wealthy if you can pay cash for everything you buy and on that basis buy far more than any other customer doing business with them.

But does life mean joy to you? Does it mean comradeship? Does it mean gladsome service to the utmost of your power? Does it mean ability to be good company for yourself?

These are the real standards of riches. Do you wince, or do you inwardly glow when you apply them?

Telephone Calls

If you wish to know if your telephone has rung during your absence put a piece of paper and a bit of carbon paper between the bell and the clapper. A mark will be made on the paper if the bell has rung.

Nothing succeeds like the efforts of a woman to be disagreeable.

WALT WHITMAN

He was an American poet. He was born at West Hills, Long Island, May 31, 1819; he died at Camden, N. J., March 27, 1892.

At an early age his family moved to Brooklyn, and from that time on he had a versatile career. Among his many occupations were the following: Errand boy in a lawyer's office, employee of a printing office, country school teacher, founder and editor of the Long Island at Huntington, editor of a daily paper, Eagle, in Brooklyn, editorial employee of the New Orleans Crescent, carpenter (building and selling houses), poet.

He wrote for magazines, contributed reviews, was author of some novels, and fially, in 1855, he published the first edition of "Leaves of Grass." At first this attracted little attention until the New York Tribune published a letter from Emerson to Whitman, in which communication the volume was characterized as "the most extraordinary piece of wit and wisdom that America has yet contributed." The book then became well known and in demand. A second and larger edition appeared in 1856, and a third in 1860.

In 1862 Whitman went to Washington to look after his brother who had been wounded in the battle of Fredericksburg. He remained at the capital and thereabouts for the next ten years, acting during the war as a war nurse and later as a clerk in government departments. During this period he himself published two or three editions of his "Leaves of Grass."

In 1866, as the result of his war experience, he gave the world his "Drum Taps."

In 1873 he was stricken by paralysis and was partially disabled. He then went to Camden, N. J., where he resided until his death in 1892. Among his other works are "Democratic Vistas," "Two Rivulets," Specimen Days," and "Collect."

To Avoid Scraping Carrots

Wash the carrots well and put them on to boil for about ten minutes. Then remove from fire, peel and resume cooking as usual.

One trouble about knowing too much is that you waste a lot of valuable time trying to explain things so that others can understand them.

The HOOVER

It BEATS... as it Sweeps as it Cleans

-- to an Appreciative Husband

Sometimes, especially in such a kindly season as Christmas always is, you probably reflect in mingled wonder and gratefulness upon the girl who cast her lot with yours.

If you are fair, you have a sense of the great treasure that is yours in her day-long and life-long service, in the offering laid so generously upon the shrine of her affection—her home.

Wouldn't you like, this Christmas, to give her something that should speak your thought of her, and that at the same time could lighten the endless round of daily labor she so willingly performs?

Almost any woman will tell you The Hoover is such a gift.

For The Hoover is more than a means to an ever-clean home; it is a way to ease, and leisure, and enjoyment, for the woman in that home.

It is a helper that electrically beats out from rug depths all nap-wearing, disease-laden grit, that sweeps up all surface litter, erects crushed nap, freshens colors, and cleans by air.

It does all these things in one easy, rapid, dustless operation, saving not only labor, but the rugs as well.

Give the woman who is your wife, or your mother, a Hoover this Christmas, and you give her one of the finest gifts a thoughtful man can choose.

Let us show you The Hoover—easy payments if desired

ROBIN HOOD, TESS OF STORM COUNTRY AT T. D. & L.

Ralph Allan Arranges to Bring Great Pictures to Glendale

"Robin Hood" with Douglas Fairbanks and "Tess of the Storm Country" with Mary Pickford, are soon to be shown at the T. D. and L. theatre. Mr. C. L. Langley, member of the firm of Turner, Dahnken & Langley, conferring here with Ralph Allan, placed his final O. K. on these great attractions, and other pictures already announced, such as "Omar, the Tent Maker," with Guy Bates Post, "East is West" with Constance Talmadge;" "The Young Rajah," with Rudolph Valentino; "Oliver Twist," with Jackie Coogan; "When Knighthood was in Flower," and innumerable others. The T. D. and L. theatre will be representative of all that is "biggest and best" in motion pictures.

Ralph Allan says: "See all these great pictures in Glendale and at less admission than is charged theatres in Los Angeles or Hollyslogan—"Big Pictures"—adopted by the T. D. and L. theatre management, is all that it means and they will live up to it.

"RAGS TO RICHES" AT THE GLENDALE THEATER

Wesley Barry, the thirteen-year-old boy star of screendom, came to town by way of the picture in which he is featured, "Rags to Riches," and completely captured the audiences at the Glendale theater, where he is ending his showing tonight.

The picture, with its wholesomeness and spirit of adventure, went straight to everybody's heart. One wonders who enjoyed it most—the young or the old, the men or the women. Certainly, it is hard to say, for the children came out wanting to emulate their boy hero, the women wanted their lads or brothers to be as plucky and fine, and the older men grew reminiscent over their youthful days.

"Rags to Riches" is a Harry Rapf production, sponsored by Warner Brothers, and is adapted from the celebrated stage success by Charles A. Taylor.

'ROBIN HOOD' TO HOLD GLENDALE NIGHT MONDAY

Douglas Fairbanks in "Robin Hood"

Gloria Swanson to Act As Hostess

Pa and Ma Glendale and all the little Glendales are to be guests next Monday evening of Sid Grauman at his Hollywood Egyptian Theatre, Hollywood boulevard and McCadden place, when the southland's most noted showman will turn the theatre over to the people of Glendale.

Beautiful Gloria Swanson will act as host at this event and she will also appear on the stage in person. A reception, to be arranged, will be one of the features and tea will be served and all Glendale is to be made at home in the beautiful film temple.

After the reception and chats with the cinema celebrities, including the principal characters among the 50 appearing in the Nottingham Castle pageant, the spectacular view of the Earl of Huntingdon's home in Merrie England will be shown. The actors and actresses in this super-prologue will wear the original costumes that were used in the filming of "Douglas Fairbanks in Robin Hood," which enters its ninth week at Grauman's Hollywood Egyptian Theatre on Sunday.

"KICK IN," FEATURE AT THE T. D. & L. THEATER

"Kick In," the clever Willard Mack play featuring Betty Compson, Bert Lytell and May McAvoy at the T. D. and L theatre today and tomorrow was credited by the audiences who saw it yesterday as being one of the finest pictures seen on the screen. With such a cast of Paramount players it could hardly be otherwise. Its story is dramatic, swift, mysterious, and entertaining. Don't miss it. Its well worth your time. Then there is a riotous comedy and latest news events in motion, making up a genuinely good show all the way through.

As a gentle reminder Ralph Allan again announces that "Robin Hood" with Douglas Fairbanks and "Tess of the Storm Country" will be shown at the T. D. and L. theatre soon. He says "See these great pictures in Glendale and at less admissions than charged by atres in Los Angeles or Hollywood."

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Cole of 122 Arden avenue and Mrs. Cole's sister, Mrs. C. B. Dudley of Memphis, Tenn., returned today from San Francisco where they have been spending several days. Mrs. Dudley, who has been visiting here for several months, will leave for her home in Memphis on Friday.

Truths in Epigram

Some books are to be tasted, others are to be swallowed, and some few digested. — Bacon.

What we call the spirit of the age, our forefathers called the end of the world.—Richter.

A man must be one of two things, either a reed shaken by the wind, or a wind to shake the reeds.—Elmo.

TWO AMENDMENTS ASKED

It is the wish of President Harding that two amendments be added to the constitution. One is in reference to child labor. The other would prevent the present practice of investing in certain securities that are immune to income tax. This is a common way of evading taxation. No justification for it ever has been discerned by any but the financiers who resort to it. The man of moderate means has felt it a hardship, not that he should be held to account for his share of taxes, but that at the same time, his rich neighbor wos allowed to put income into such form that under the statutes it could not be disturbed. Such a situation easily may be construed as the result of class legislation.

Demonstration seems to have been complete that there is no chance to regulate child labor save by amendment. The legislature is able to protect the children only of one state. Some state adjoining may utterly refuse such protection. Congress has sought to check the evil, but its best efforts have failed. There is a sinister influence working constantly in opposition. The courts have decided that the measure passed by congress is unconstitutional. This was a strictly judicial decision, that never won general approval. Yet the measure thus cast aside had been formulated with great care. There is a chance that some defect might be found in any substitute devised by congress.

It is almost a certainty that an amendment prohibiting child labor as now conducted in certain sections, would be supported generously. The opponents hardly could have the courage to fight it in the open, thus subjecting their motives to exposure.

HAYS WILL BE WELCOME

Everybody interested in the moving picture industry will be glad that Will H. Hays, who is its executive head, is to visit Hollywood for a long stay. This is the very center of the industry. Most of the producing companies work in Hollywood. It is the home of the most celebrated screen stars. A large majority of the notable pictures have been made here. Wtih all of this, there has been much libelous untruth circulated concerning Hollywood, which is a beautiful city of quiet demeanor; a place of churches, schools, culture and mor 1.

Mr. Hays has been concerned at the reports, not that he believed them, but that they were injuring business and doing a grave injustice to worthy men and women and to a worthy community. From the first it has been his determination to have pictures of high quality. He has felt that to do this the producers should cater to the better sentiment of the public. He wants the pictures clean, artistic and instructive. Doubtless he wants to become so familiar with Hollywood conditions, as to be able to refute, out of his own knowledge, the slanders that have been circulated about the place and its chief activities. He does not believe in official censorships, but he believes in pictures that will make the demand for censorship wholly superfluous.

Scuthern California's climatic and scenic conditions are ideal for moving pictures. More and more production continues to center here. The growth has been enormous, its commercial importance steadily gaining. The purpose of Mr. Hays is to see that development shall be along the best lines and therefore Hollywood and environs will welcome his presence.

THE ENOCH ARDEN BUSINESS

One of these so-called Enoch Arden cases has come to light at Santa Barbara. A man deserted his bride, leaving no word as to where he had gone, or why. His wife mourned him as dead. She had thought him dead, for many reasons, one being that word confirming such report had been received from his relatives. After two years as a widow, she met another man, to whom in due time and fashion, she became married. Years went by. There was happiness in the new home. Then husband No. 1 appeared on the scene. If his vanishing had been a brutal mistake, his coming back was worse. He had no ethical right to come back. His place was elsewhere. He could have no moral claim on his former wife. Had he been aware that she had remarried, his return could have been for no better purpose than the creation of trouble. Had he discovered the truth after having returned, his only commendable course would have been to go away, making no announcement of his presence.

Somehow these Enoch Arden chaps seems to think themselves martyrs. As a matter of fact the man deserting his wife and sending back no word, is not a martyr. On the other hand his act is to be defined as a crime. Upon him rests full responsibility for all the trouble due to his course. If, having made himself believed to be dead, he was left with a shred of self respect, he would strive to let the belief remain undisturbed.

COLD COMFORT FOR WETS

In the executive message there is the definite pronouncement that the prohibition amendment is expected to stand, and that so standing, it shall be enforced. The persons misled into the belief that because they desire liquor restored, the opinion of the country is with them, have erected a set of false hopes. There seems not the slightest probability that the saloon ever is to come back. Because of opposition to the saloon, many who really might be glad to have lighter drinks made available, could this be done safely, will oppose such a move. They fear that it would be a step in the direction of the old saloon, and thus they never will consent to have it taken. To such personal sacrifice as this involves, they will submit without demur.

The struggle against prohibition is bitter for the present. The sentiment that supports the struggle is bound to die out. It will find no lodgment in the minds of a generation that has grown up unfamiliar with the taste and the lure of strong liquors. Doubtless some, addicted to indulgence for a life time, will find the means to continue to the end. There are old topers ready to swallow any poison so long as it has power to intoxicate, but they die off rapidly owing to this practice. In time there will be men without the taint of alcohol in their blood. Then prohibition will be without any to fight it.

The President plans to have a conference of governors to the end that federal and state authorities may co-operate to subdue the liquor traffic. Most of the states already have indicated at the polls their willingness to do their part. Altogether it looks as though the wets, in holding conventions and broadcasting propaganda, were wasting time and money.

A CITY DESTROYED

Beyond doubt the comparatively ancient city of Astoria will rise again. Once more it will be prosperous, and in time the people, now so distressed, will forget the misfortune that swept their possessions away and left them, as they thought, bankrupt. The city—any city—is no mere collection of homes and business houses. It is the visible expression of the spirit of its people. This no flames can vanquish. The spirit of the people, brooding over the ravaged area which had been their dwelling place, visions, while the ruins still smoke, a new and fairer habitat. The new Astoria, as yet a dream, will excel the old. It will be constructed better. The spirit of the people, glorying in its own achievement, will with fresh confidence, face whatever destiny awaits.

It seems strange that a northwestern city should be mentioned even as "comparatively ancient," but Astoria was founded in 1810. That date was long ago measured by the complete stretch of American history. The town was a feature of the Astor ventures. Having the only good harbor on the Columbia it was bound to become important. Thirty years ago much of the business district was built out over the water. Later it began a substantial growth, and was fast on its way to metropolitan dignity when the disaster befell. The fire will mean a pause in development, temporary hardship; nothing more depressing. As San Francisco arose with beauty and vigor accentuated, so will Astoria. This is the American way.

It is a favorite statement with fervid orators that about 97 cents out of every dollar raised by the government goes for military purposes. The fact is that the proportion of the dollar going to support army, navy and marines amounts to 14.9 cents.

It's an easy matter to take things as they come; it is letting them go again that tries a man's fortitude.

Man probably likes to go fishing because his wife doesn't care to go along.

WHO IS TO BLAME?

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Who is to blame for the near bankruptcy of Europe and the general collapse of the world? Georges Clemenceau is in America telling her very plainly that she is to blame. She started out to make the world safe for democracy and quit before she finished her task.

Dr. Frank Crane

At this charge some of the senators flare up and declare that it is France that is to blame, because of her spirit of vengeance and her militarism.

Which of these two is right?

Answer: Both.

Until America and France get through boasting and acquire humility enough patiently to study the facts, investigate actual conditions, and try to find out what they ought to do instead of trying to justify what they have done, there is not much hope of a happy outcome.

Nobody is prepared to do the right thing until he quits using all of his efforts to prove that he is right and always has been right, and begins to devote his efforts to the business of finding out whether he was right in the first place and is right still.

There is no doubt in the minds of that small portion of the American people who are devoted to thinking instead of cheering that America is much to blame.

We are the strongest nation in the world, and we are not realizing the responsibility that always goes with strength.

We are the richest nation in the world, and we are doing like a great many rich men, trying our best to increase our riches and "protect" ourselves against others less fortunate. Our conscience is not strong enough to impress us with the stewardship of all riches.

We are tied up with the rest of the world, whether we like it or not. Our prosperity is linked with the prosperity of others. And the great war showed us that when disaster comes to them we cannot escape it.

We were not entangled with any European alliances in 1914, but before we knew it we got tangled, and it cost us a pretty penny. There was no way to escape it.

In the council chambers of the world America's chair is vacant. Every American with a proper pride in his country sees this with a sense of shame.

Besides all this, we have the greatest moral influence of any nation in the world. We refuse to exercise this. If America had joined her voice with that of France and England there would have been no Turkish atrocities such as the massacre at Smyrna. We would not have needed to send a single soldier. All we heeded was to speak up like a man and not squeak like a mouse.

In general the American conscience is entirely too somnolent as to its role in the world today.

And France is to blame also.

She is forgetting that vengeance is poor business. She does not see that her problem for the future is to live with and co-operate with the German nation, and not to exterminate it nor cripple it.

The governmental policies of both the United States and France are poor, ordid, and bad.

What M. Clemenceau charges against the United States is true.

And the retort which the United States senators make to M. Clemenceau is also true.

It is time we both repented and amended.

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

Life is pretty much a matter of selection.
Just as the erection of any other structure.
For life is a structure of living.
Your life is a matter of environment and task and play and belief.
And you live with it or in it.
Just as you may live in a house.

* * *

There are certain limitations, of course.
If you build a house you have to take into account your purse.
For the house comes out of your purse.
And so in the matter of a temple of living you have to take into account certain items of capacity and ability and inclination and all that.

* * *

You cannot elect yourself to be a great captain of industry.
If you have not the inclination or capacity.
But you can elect to say whether you will be industrious or lazy.
You can elect your living structure in terms of effort or the lack of it.

* * *

In the matter of wages, for example.
You may elect whether to squander them or save a part of them.
You may elect whether you will be thrifty or thriftless.
Whether you will be careful or careless.

* * *

In the matter of human contact.
You may elect whether you will be cheerful or cheerless.
Whether you will be friendly or disagreeable.
Whether you will be square or crooked.
The choice is yours to make.

* * *

In the matter of reading and amusement.
You may elect wholesomeness or uncleanness.
You may choose the right thing or the wrong one.
You may improve your mind or debase it.
For there are all sorts of materials at hand.
You are the one who will choose what to build your living out of.

* * *

In the matter of labor.
You may choose industry or laziness.
You may work with spirit or without it.
You may watch the clock or your work.
You cannot always choose what you will do.
But you may choose how you will do what is yours to do.

* * *

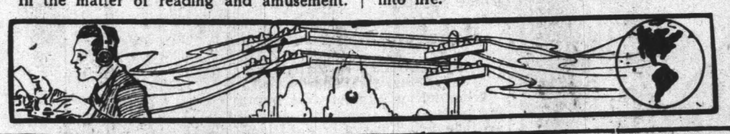
So it is all a matter of selection, in general terms.
You may waste your leisure time or improve it.
You may choose evil companionship or wholesome.
You may form habits that weaken and unfit you or you may avoid them or break them.

* * *

There is fresh air in the world and there is foul air.
There is clean life and there is unclean.
There is vice and there is wholesome virtue.
There is strength and there is weakness.
There is gladness and there is meanness.
The choice is yours.

* * *

And every day you are holding an election.
To make a choice of the things you will put into life.



Songs of the Poets

Rose-Marie of the Angels—By Adelaide Crapsey (1878-1914)

Little Sister Rose-Marie,
Will thy feet as willing-light
Run through Paradise, I wonder,
As they run the blue skies under,
Willing feet, so airy-light?

Little Sister Rose-Marie,
Will thy voice as bird-note clear
Lift and Ripple over Heaven
As its mortal sound is given,
Swift bird-voice, so young and clear?

How God will be glad of thee
Little Sister Rose-Marie!

THE WISDOM OF THE FOOL

By ESTELLE LAWTON LINDSEY

We smile at the fool's paradise, forgetting that if he did not live in Elysian Fields of his own creation he would probably not live at all.

By that I mean that a hopeless life is not life, and that the fool who builds a fictitious world is often doing his best against odds to keep in his breast the will to live, without which all effort would cease and the fool pass on without learning the lesson that he came here to learn.

This is not to be taken as praise for those who, facing reality every moment, deny its existence or its potency. To them the deluge will come in fullness of time. True, it may also come to the fool who guilds a bad situation with the gold of fancy; but if he cannot change the circumstances surely it is wisdom to embellish them, especially if in the process of decoration his imagination finds useful play.

To put it simply we are wont to confuse the man who, facing a knotty problem and being unequal to its solution, makes the best of it, denies its cruel compulsions and builds his house of life from the salvage of youthful dreams and the fatuous dreamer who refuses to open his eyes to reality and smokes merrily while the servants of fate pile high explosives about his careless feet.

The first fool we call a philosopher. He is more truly an alchomist for he transforms pain into feeries gold. In his secret heart he knows that his house of life is drifting mist; but he knows, too, that whorls of mist are lovely when the light is on them and that every spirit, as every firefly, carries its own light. His paradise may be pathetic, but its creation commands respect.

The paradise of the wilfully igorant is another matter. It is merely a powder magazine the explosion of which alone will cure his blindness.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

STILL MORE UNWRITTEN LAW

[Cincinnati Enquirer]

The unwritten law, permitting the infliction by the aggrieved of the death penalty upon those personally condemned in the controversies between the sexes, grows and expands, taking more and more under its widening aegis.

One of the recent additions to it is furnished from Kansas City. There a divorced woman, mother of two children, became the mistress of a married man upon the alleged promise that he would separate from his invalid wife and make her his spouse instead. He delayed and philandered with other women. So she slew him while he slept beside her.

Her defense was that she committed the deed for the protection of her sex against the false promises of the other. The dead man had no means of telling his story and the jury acquitted her as her lawyer proclaimed what he, rather strangely for a member of the bar, called the new unwritten law and announced its application in the more modern sense. The new Joan of Arc announces that she will lead a better life, evidently an easy thing to do in comparison with her past performances.

Here in Cincinnati an ordained minister of Him who came into the world heralded as the Prince of Peace and to bring to an end the reign of blood proclaims that the deed was justified, and that if he had been a member of the jury he would have voted to acquit the woman, not taken in adultery alone but in premeditated murder. This is also easy to believe.

AN OCEAN-GOING POORHOUSE

[St. Louis Star]

The departure of a government ship from a French port a few days ago bearing a load of destitute Americans is a homely touch of the aftermath of the war. We are used to extending the helpful hand to foreigners who have emigrated to this country, but it is something new to find Americans stranded in foreign quarters, for Americans usually do not travel abroad without money.

Yet the President Polk, which recently sailed from Cherbourg, carried 150 Americans without funds. The government of the United States is paying for their transportation and private philanthropy is purchasing their food. Other ships are to follow until the three or four hundred people who have become somewhat of a burden to Europe and embarrassment to this country, are returned to their homes. Among the group are the proud and haughty whose money either ran out before they purchased their return ticket or disappeared on the roulette wheel; former soldiers who elected to work out their destiny in France, some of them with French brides. It is reported to be a motely crew, whose dispositions and states of mind are as various as their appearances. The only conceivable objection to their deportation is that they might have served to convince French shopkeepers that all Americans are not millionaires.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

Americans feel a pride in their army and navy. They do not become elated at seeing these establishments cut down to contemptible size. They have a large country, the world is in bad humor; there may be another fuss. Everybody hopes not, but there may be.

HENRY JAMES

The government trains men for service. The students are selected with great care, being the pick of the country. They must have strong bodies and far more than the average intelligence. When these students have been graduated as officers, they are competent. They are supposed to have careers before them; decent pay, chance for promotion, retirement pay when their age limit has been reached.

Just at present there is an effort to procure civilian jobs for army and navy men turned out of the service. These men, during a war not yet quite forgotten, conducted themselves with courage, skill and devotion. They were striving to make the world safe. They thought this was what they were doing; they had been informed by their countrymen that such was the purpose. It was not their fault that they failed to make the world safe. Somehow the theory has been set up that the safety has been accomplished. With no danger in sight, what's the use of keeping an officer at the work to which he has dedicated himself? Not a bit. Let him get out and hustle. He surely doesn't expect the nation to be grateful? The precedents are against it.

However, the spectacle of army and navy officers still in the prime of life, obliged to scan the help wanted columns, is not exactly edifying. edifying.

There are some men so mean that one wonders why nature tolerates them. A specimen of this sort has just become of record, but vanished before there was a chance to kick him.

A woman, a trained nurse, was taken seriously ill on a Los Angeles street car. She got off and went to a nearby park, thinking the air would relieve her. As she grew worse, she gave a man $10 to go and procure an ambulance for her. He took the money, never sent an ambulance, but failed to come back. When the woman was found later her condition was precarious.

This fellow is the chap mentioned in the above paragraph.

A woman in Wisconsin was electrocuted by touching an extension wire in the attic of her home. A little later her sorrowing husband was endeavoring to show how the accident had happened. He touched the same wire, and fell dead.

The news paragparh conveying this information says little more about it. It might have explained whether the death of the husband was regarded as deliberate suiside.

* * *

In Detroit there is a woman under arrest on the charge of seeking to have her husband killed. It appears from the testimony that in soliciting a good gunman to do the work, she had the misfortune to choose a policeman, whose oath of office inhibited him from obliging.

Surely, after all that has been done in the way of removing obnoxious husbands, an intelligent woman might have thought up a better scheme.

A screen actor named Valentino is very sore because the court has informed him that he must live up to the terms of a contract by which he receives $1250 a week. Valentino thought this too trifling an amount for an actor of his beauty and talent.

There is not the least hint of pathos in the predicament of this pretty boy. Men who fill much higher stations in the world do not get half as much as he receives. Useful and active citizens, doing work of distinct value, could not hope to earn in ten years as much as this star's year's pay.

Valentino ought to be reasonable.

WATCHING THE PARADE

BY JOHN PILGRIM

On the fourth street north lives the corner grocer. He owns his house, free and clear. He has a small fliv in which his sons and daughters and wife go riding on Sundays. The old man usually sleeps. Being a corner grocer isn't what you might call a restful occupation. The boys and girls are good scholars at school. Every one says so. They are well-behaved youngsters, too.

"I'm going to send 'em to college," says the corner grocer. "I can leave them an education and that's all. That is more than I was left. Maybe I can stake each to a couple of hundred dollars when he or she starts out to make a way in the world, just like my father did. I got a colt when I was twenty-one years old. It will be hard sledding for me to put them through, but I'll do it."

Get the picture. No man works harder than the corner grocer with this ambition ahead of him. He pinches pennies and he opens up the store and closes it. The family literally has no luxuries except a few good books and magazines and papers and the little fliv. And the fliv doubles as a delivery wagon during the week. But last week the corner grocer's no account half-brother walked in on him.

"I'm down and out, Joe," he said. "I cannot work any longer. I guess you'll have to take care of me."

The half-brother never was any good. He was always a wastrel. Nothing bad about him, exactly, and nothing pronouncedly good. His way of living may have contributed to the fact that he is down and out at an age when he should be going strong. The corner grocer thought Ed's case over for a few days, and then he turned him out of doors.

"I do not feel that you have a claim on me," he said. "I saw you last when I was four years old. Yet because of this tie of blood you demand that I give you room and board for the rest of your life. I won't do it, Ed. Get out."

The corner grocer says that to the day of his death he will feel little and mean and low about it. But if he had kept Ed he would have interfered with his children's start in life. It might have meant that one of them would be forced to go without an education. He says that Ed made his bed during a long and active life and now he can lie on it.

"But I wonder," said the corner grocer, wistfully, "if I am doing right?"

THREE PRETTY GIRLS AND ESCORTS FACE TRANSPORTING CHARGE IN CRAWFORD'S COURT

Burdette Keil, William Heiffler and Roy Fowler Are Fined Fifty Dollars Each and the Charges Against the Others Are Dismissed

TWO OF THE GIRLS ARE UNDER EIGHTEEN

"I Never Saw a Man Yet That I Admired As a Man Because He Drank," Said Judge Crawford in Lecture to Young People

Three pretty girls and three men faced Judge Crawford Monday to answer a charge of transporting liquor in the city of Burbank. The men were fined $50 each and the cases of the girls were dismissed.

The men gave their names as:
Burdette Keil, age 21, of Glendale.
William Heiffler, age 22, of Glendale.
Roy Fowler, age 20, of Los Angeles.

Two of the girls were from Hollywood and the third from Glendale.

A bottle of brandy and a bottle of wine were found in the car, which was owned by the Keil boy.

The boys denied that they had drunk any of the liquor. One of the girls admitted that she had taken a small glass of wine.

Two of the girls were under 18, and all said that they had never been in any trouble of the kind before.

"I never saw a man yet that I admired as a man because he drank," said Judge Crawford in his lecture to the three boys. "You have not only violated our local ordinance prohibiting the transportation of liquor in Burbank, but you contributed to the delinquency of these girls, these mere children, when you offered them liquor."

Two of the girls at first gave their ages as 18, and the third as 19. When they appeared before the judge one of the girls admitted she was only 16.

The girls were allowed to return to their homes following their arrest upon their promises to return by the time court opened yesterday morning. The bail of the driver of the car was set at $200 and $100 was the bail set for the others. When they failed to procure the necessary funds to secure their release they were detained in the city jail.

Two of the girls said that they hadn't known their escorts until Sunday evening, and that the two couples joined company with the third couple, whom neither of them knew.

The young people drove through town at about 25 miles an hour, blowing the horn of the automobile and yelling, according to Officers Kyle and Ackerley, who made the arrest.

They were arrested just outside the limits of the city where officers caught up with them after their ride through Burbank.

ROB MAN ON ROAD NORTHEAST OF BURBANK

Take $15 in Cash and Watch From C. A. McKinney of S. Fernando

C. A. McKinney, of San Fernando, was robbed of $15 and a gold watch about two miles northeast of Burbank Saturday.

He was driving his car along a lonely road when two men stepped into the road ahead of him and ordered him to stop.

McKinney says the men searched him and then ordered him to drive on. He came to Burbank immediately, but did not report the robbery until yesterday morning.

Two old Irishmen had been at odds almost ever since the day of their birth, when one of them was taken seriously ill. The doctors broke the news to him that he had small chance to live.

He summoned his old-time enemy to his bedside.

"Tim," he said, plaintively, "they tell me I'm goin' to kick over. If I do, will ye forgit all our fights and sort of let bygones be bygones?"

"That'll be all right," said Tim, in great embarrassment.

"And, Tim," here the old rascal's voice grew stronger—"if I ever get well and ye remind me I ever said that, I'll knock that fat wooden head off'n yer shoulders."

NEW FACES IN HALLS OF CONGRESS

Many new faces were seen at the opening of the special session of the Congress. Senator Thomas F. Bayard took his seat from Delaware, Senator Smith W. Brookhart was sworn in from Iowa and Senator W. F. George from Georgia, succeeding Senator Mrs. W. H. Felton, who sat for a day as the only woman ever in that body. Senator David S. Reed of Pennsylvania, who was sworn in shortly before the close of the last Congress, was also on hand. Mrs. Winifred Mason Huck of Chicago succeeded her deceased father as congressman-at-large from Illinois.

James Couzens, Mayor of Detroit, Succeeds Newberry in Senate

Governor Alex. J. Groesbeck of Michigan, has appointed James Couzens, mayor of Detroit, and one of the wealthiest men in the country, United States senator to fill the unexpired term of Truman H. Newberry, who resigned recently. Mr. Couzens, who is fifty years old, started life as a railroad news "butcher." He became associated with Henry Ford early in Ford's business career, and several years ago sold his interest in the corporation for $30,000,000.

CARS COLLIDE AT MAGNOLIA

A car driven by J. C. Baker of Whittier, collided with a Ford truck owned by Jesse Smith, and driven by a man, who, according to the report made by Baker, refused to give his name, at San Fernando boulevard and Magnolia last week.

Baker, while driving east on San Fernando, attempted to make a left turn at Magnolia. The Ford truck struck his car just as he had completed the turn.

Ranchers and Forests

By CHARLES H. SHINN
Forest Examiner

When national forest work began in California, the perfectly natural attitude of a majority of landowners, whether in the "reserves" of 1900 or in the adjacent foothills or far off in the heart of the great valleys, was one of questioning doubt. Thousands of men who were toiling with might and main to improve their ranches, support their families, educate their children and lay by a few dollars for old age, could not feel any enthusiasm on the subject of forestry. They only saw that timber lands with occasional bits of tillable area, were "withdrawn from entry."

The pioneers of the forest service, many of them the sons of farmers and of mountain-loving ancestors, felt this situation from the first hour of their work, and felt it more and more strongly with every year. All through the beginnings of what were called "forest reserves" that were under the land office of the department of the interior until transferred to agriculture in 1905, the growing desire of every broadminded forest officer was to make the forests more and more useful to every owner of a ranch, near and far—in other words, to the people of California. Free permits for the use of timber needed on ranches for fencing or for firewood, grazing within the forests for livestock (and without charge for the small ranch-owner's work stock and milk cows)—these were among the earlier steps taken.

But before long one felt without definite words the growth of goodwill between the forest people and the men, women and children of the adjacent ranches. It was most fortunate from the purely human standpoint that the first ten years of forest work were long before the age of autos, and when fences were few. The rangers rode everywhere, stopped over-night in all sorts of places, received a vast amount of hospitality and returned it as they could; came to love and be loved by hundreds of plain ranch folk as mutual understanding of their respective work and aims grew.

Before long the forest officers were asked to lend books and periodicals about forestry, and some of them did a good deal of this giving especial attention to school libraries. One of the pioneers who loved his work used to tell the ranchers: "Everybody ought to start the day with a shout of 'God bless our mountains and forests.'"

California's Agricultural Wealth Approximates

Three Billion Five Hundred Million Dollars

Here are facts about California which should make every one of her citizens prouder than ever before of this Commonwealth.

And they should be sent broadcast over the United States so that citizens of other states may more fully appreciate the wonders of California.

Here's Your Home City Clearly Shown

This series of advertisements tells of the importance of your State and also shows the location of your home city. Send your list of Eastern friends to us today.

Note This Service To Your State

This advertisement tells of one phase of California's greatness. Two other advertisements tell the other phases.

Your Eastern friends should know these facts. Help us tell them. Send us a list of names and addresses of people whom you would like to have receive these advertisements and the literature of Californians, Inc., the All-Year Club of Southern California, and the San Diego-California Club. This will help your State.

Here is a state that is 780 miles long and from 150 to 350 miles wide, with a total area of 158,297 square miles, nearly as great as the combined area of New York, Ohio, Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts and New Jersey.

Within its boundaries lie the highest and lowest points in the States. Mount Whitney rises 14,502 feet above sea level, while Death Valley sinks almost 400 feet below sea level.

And here are mountains, rich in mineral and timber resources, valleys of amazing fertility, world famous harbors, cities teeming with industrial activity, lovely homes and contented people.

Agricultural Income $700,000,000

Of the fourteen leading counties in the United States in total value of crops, seven are California counties.

The total annual income from the field and tree crops of this state is $587,600,591. Dairying adds an income of $99,004,358.

Though probably as famous for her oranges as for any other single product—California's oranges bring her over $50,000,000 annually—this state also raises many millions of dollars' worth of peaches, prunes, apples, apricots, walnuts, pears, plums, lemons, cherries, almonds, grapefruit, figs and olives.

Here grow the earliest and latest fruit crops of the country; and more winter fruits and vegetables than in all the rest of the United States combined.

California's vineyards return to her citizens over $92,000,000 per year for raisins and grapes.

California's field crops bring great wealth, too. California has been the leader in the raising of barley since 1852, and her annual income from this crop aggregates nearly $30,000,000.

California is the second largest hay and rice growing state in the Union. The former returns over $100,000,000 a year and the latter over $11,000,000.

Great crops of wheat, corn, oats, beans, cotton, tobacco, hemp, rye, potatoes, sugar beets, melons and garden truck are harvested every year and add their millions to California's wealth.

Farm Values Increasing

A study of comparative figures reveals the fact that though the average size of farms is decreasing, the average value of farms is rapidly increasing. Note these figures:

	1920	1910	1900
Average acreage per farm:
All land	249.6	316.7	397.4
Improved land	100.9	129.1	164.9
Average value per farm:
All farm property	$29,158	$18,308	$10,980
Land and buildings	26,122	16,447	9,759
Implements and machinery	1,156	414	294
Live stock	1,879	1,447	928

Another important factor in California's agricultural wealth is an enormous investment in live stock which totals over $200,000,000. The investment in poultry runs over fifteen million dollars; more than eight million dollars' worth of eggs alone were shipped from California in a recent year.

Three billion, five hundred million dollars is the agricultural wealth of California and she has great additional wealth in her natural resources and her growing industries.

Serve Your State This Way

This advertisement is one of a series of three, the first devoted to telling of California's agricultural wealth, the second to California's natural resources, and the third to California's industries. These are facts of which you can well be proud.

MAN GIVING DRINK TO OFFICER IS FINED $75

Says He Bought Liquor From "Bootlegger" on Street Here

Judge Crawford of Burbank fined Ollie Taylor, charged with the possession of liquor, $75 and gave him a 30-day jail sentence which he later suspended.

Taylor was arrested Saturday night when he offered Burbank police officer Fred Olchvary a drink of whiskey. He flatly denied having any liquor when first brought to the police station. Even after officers had found his car which contained a quart bottle, half full of whiskey, he said he did not drive it here.

He was lodged in the city jail but later raised his bail and returned yesterday morning to face the charge.

Taylor said that he had bought the liquor from a man whom he met on the street in Burbank, as medicine for his sick wife. He had not drunk any of the liquor he said, and intended to return immediately to his home, when taken into custody by Olchvary.

"Mr. Taylor, if you tell the truth all the way through you may strike a sympathetic chord in me which would possibly lighten your sentence," said Judge Crawford to Taylor, when the man faced him in court.

BABSON'S LETTER

BUILDING WILL BE LARGE IN 1923 SAYS BABSON

Warns Against Attempts to Raise Prices

WELLESLEY HILLS, Mass., Dec 13.—There has been much discussion of late as to whether the building boom has spent itself. Roger W. Babson evidently doesn't think it has. In commenting today on the building outlook he called attention to several bullish factors.

"New building," says Mr. Babson, "is the outstanding feature of our business recovery. It is what started us on the road to better business. Never before in the history of the country have so many new houses been built as in the first ten months of 1922. For every house that was built in 1921, two have been built this year. Last year in twenty-seven northwestern states of the country we spent $688,000,000 for homes; this year we have already spent $1,099,000,000, and when the gong rings on December 31, the total will very likely show 100 percent more than in 1921.

"This building revival is not confined to houses either. House building has been most spectacular, but we have also built many more offices, factories, schools, hospitals, churches, in fact, all kinds of construction. Whereas our normal building total is about $3,000,000,000, the end of this year, we shall have built to the extent of $5,000,000,000."

When asked if he did not think that we have already over-done this building boom, Mr. Babson replied:

"I do not think so, yet. I look for continued building activity, both in residential and business building for the greater part of 1923. Beyond that time, I expect a decline. A survey just made by the National Association of Real Estate Boards shows that, out of a total of 184 cities scattered over the country, 121 cities still report a housing shortage. Of the remaining 63 cities, 53 report no shortage and only 10 a moderate shortage. This study corroborates my opinion that there is still much residential building to be done, although the peak may have been passed."

"What about rents?" Mr. Babson was asked.

"High rents have probably passed their peak. The long swing will be downward. Here again it is a question of supply and demand. The coming decline in rents will not be abrupt, at least, not until this building boom has supplied more of the shortage. Rental advances for the present are slightly more numerous than declines, but in the majority of cities there is no movement either up or down. Gradually, of course, the trend will turn downward as the demand is more fully supplied. Industrial and business rents show surprising stiffness due to business recovery, but these do not indicate any long continued advance.

"I am particularly optimistic with regard to suburban building development. The boom in city building will probably not last more than a year, but suburban building is different. Auto traffic is so congested in the big cities that shoppers had rather trade in suburban stores than drive into the heart of our great cities. City dwellers are looking for homes in the country. I cannot emphasize too strongly the importance of this tendency toward suburban expansion."

The statistician was asked what effect building material prices and labor would be likely to have on the building outlook.

"That's where the danger lies," he replied. "Unless prices of building materials are kept down at least near present levels, the people will stop building, just as they did in 1920. In fact, I do not think we will see quite so much building next year unless there is some reduction in costs. During the next few months material prices should show some seasonal weakness. But, as sure as the material dealers start in to boost prices next summer, they will choke off their business. The same warning applies to labor. Wages are already as high as they can be and still allow much building. Both labor and material men should realize that it is better for them to have steady building at moderate profits than it is to have a short spurt of building at high profits, followed by a long period of idleness.

"However, what interests me as much as anything is the necessity of eliminating the waste in time, labor, and materials in the building business. I firmly believe that a saving of 15 to 25 percent in the cost of building could be made by cutting out this waste. The country is literally throwing away $1,000,000,000 annually which might be saved for the industry and help to reduce the cost of construction. Over a half billion dollars' loss occurs from lack of employment in the dull seasons, strikes, poor labor management, etc. I am glad to see that wide-awake men in the contracting business are experimenting with methods to facilitate building in the winter time. The use of canvas protection for bricklaying, salamanders and steam jets to prevent freezing of concrete, and other methods of combatting bad weather are being more generally adopted.

"But isn't winter building more expensive?" queried the interviewer.

"Yes, but even if the cost is 10 or 12 percent greater, the contractor (as has been estimated) could afford to take a smaller profit, and the workmen less wages, rather than do nothing all winter," Mr. Babson replied. "Moreover, the man who builds in the winter time has the pick of the labor market. Often the greater efficiency of winter labor completely offsets the other added costs.

"Other things that make building so expensive are high labor turnover, poor and inadequate equipment, careless handling of material, failure to plan in detail. On the labor side, there are wasteful regulations and restrictions, requiring skilled men to do the work of unskilled, prohibiting labor saving devices, limiting the number of apprentices, and so forth.

"All these things combine to make the high cost of building. When the men who are conducting the industry learn to cut these wastes out, then we shall have more building at lower cost to the people, and more profit to the industry."

General business is still improving. The index of the Babsonchart shows general activity but 2 percent below normal, an improvement of 1 percent during the last week. This is the highest point reached in over two years.

DEAR OLD DAD

Dear old Dad—how I remember
In the first days of December
How his brows were furrowed deeply,
As the days went slipping by,
And the mistletoe and holly
Did not make him as jolly
As the rest of us who saw it, and I used to wonder why.

Dear old Dad—when we were humming
Merry tunes of Christmas coming,
He was never quite as songful as the rest of us somehow,
He was never cross or surly
In the Christmas hurly-burly,
But his mood was rather thoughtful, like the wrinkles in his brow.

Dear old Dad—his soul undaunted
By the Christmas things we wanted,
Plugged along a little harder and he saved a little more,
But I never knew his yearnings
To stretch out his modest earnings,
That there might be nothing lacking of what we were wishing for.

Dear old Dad—with kids and cousins,
And with relatives by dozens,
Near and dear ones, dim and distant, all the blood-ones and in-laws,
When by this and that one harried,
What a heavy pack he carried,
When our world was all a Christmas tree and he the Santa Claus!

The Once Over

THE COMING OF CLEMENCEAU

Georges Clemenceau, the only great European war leader who hasn't written his memoirs, and who thinks it would be a mistake to do so, is on his way to the United States. It will be his second visit to the land of the free and the home of the soulless, as Kipling would say.

* * *

Georges came here 60 years ago. He has no idea how the old place has changed in that time.

* * *

At that time his purpose in leaving France and coming to America was to keep out of jail. Of course, in those days it was possible to keep out of jail in this country.

* * *

There were only a few amendments to the constitution, and any man with any sense could memorize them and know at once what he could do and what he could not do if he would avoid the bastille. It is far different today, and if Georges has any real friends in America they will warn him that there is practically nothing by way of diversion allowed without a prison penalty attached.

* * *

When Clemenceau (pronounced clemen-saw) was in this country sixty years ago he was a school teacher and an instructor in horseback riding at Stamford, Conn. Few of his pupils of those days are alive, but most all the horses are and may be seen on the Central Park riding paths any day.

* * *

Stamford hasn't changed much, he will discover. There are people in that town who didn't know Clemenceau had left it until they started reading about him in the world war bulletins.

* * *

His program, after landing, has been all arranged for him. Colonel House is in charge. This will assure also the first public appearance of Colonel House in this country in quite some time.

* * *

Clemenceau (pronounced Klem-en-kew) is a retired statesman and so is Colonel House. In fact, as a result of the recent elections, Georges will find America full of retired statesmen.

* * *

Clemenceau (pronounced Cleymon-soo) will be very unpopular with American hotel men from the start, as he has announced that he will not attend a single banquet under any circumstances. He got his indigestion many years ago and is entirely satisfied.

Nor will he dine in any American restaurants. It is almost impossible to dine in an American restaurant today without being thrown into the bastille as a result of a raid by government agents. It was this very thing that drove Clemenceau (pronounced Klee-main-aw) out of France sixty years ago.

* * *

He has announced that he will speak frankly while in this country. This will be a novelty and can only be explained on the ground that he is one politician who never intends running for office again.

* * *

His ambition is to facilitate American and French understandings and make Americans appreciate French tactics of the past year. If he can explain to American satisfaction why France, after being helped to beat the Germans, turned around and kissed the Turks, he will be entitled to laugh off all other issues.

* * *

Whatever he may say or do he will be welcomed as the most picturesque and interesting personality to come inside the three-mile limit in many years.

* * *

Clemenceau (pronounced Klah-mon-sor) has been a member of the French government more times than a shad has bones. He has been in and out of more cabinets than any living man except Houdini.

* * *

The difference between Georges and Houdini was that they always knew how Georges got out of a cabinet but never knew how he got in again.

Father and mother were discussing the costumes they were to wear at a fancy dress ball. Joan, aged seven, was an interested listener.

"Mother," she said, "can I go as a milkmaid?"

"No, dear, you're too small."

"But mummie," pleaded Joan, "I could go as a condensed milkmaid."

Many a man is chaperoned by a detective.

It was the first day of school and the teacher was taking the names of the children, those of their fathers and the business of each one. Small Lucy gave her name and that of her father, but hesitated and became silent when it came to his business. Urged by the teacher, she blushingly said:

"He is Aunt Jane that does the woman's page and the beauty column of the Daily News."

"Annie," called her mistress, "just come into the dining-room a moment. Now look at this. Watch me. I can write my name in the dust on this table."

Annie grinned.

"It be a grand thing," she said, "to have a eddication."
